

SECRET

Back at the office, Messrs. Kekich and Hartzell of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce called on me about the presentation of the Department of Commerce's E award that I am to present on November 13.

We are having a little trouble at home with the usual servant problem. Hutchins has become weak in the legs, and our domestic troops are in a state of disarray. E and I have agreed it would be wonderful if we could import some colored people from the United States, and dress the girls in bandanas and the men in white coats, or like the Duchess of Windsor's famous Jamaican, in a red coat with white gloves, and be done with the whole business of downstairs, upstairs maids, in-between maids, and who does what. It would also be something of a novelty if one could have southern food, as a change.

Had a massage this morning, then went to the office. At noon Robert Lutyens appeared to take some photographs of me, preliminary to painting my portrait later on.

Jimmy Jolis, the attractive 14-year old/son of Eva and Bert, arrived yesterday to stay. We had seven children for lunch, before sending them off to the movies.

I took a walk this afternoon, then wrote a speech, before joining our numerous house guests.

November 4, 1962 - Sunday

This afternoon Morris Ernst, Alan Schwartz, Effie and Bruce Hopper came for drinks. The Chambers and the Thompsons had dinner with us. Brose is leaving for Paris tomorrow. Jimmy is returning to school on Tuesday, the others are abandoning us later in the week.
